Pennsylvania’s Juvenile Justice System: Looking Back and Looking Forward
November 6-8, 2019 at the Harrisburg Hilton & Towers
Sponsored by:
The Juvenile Court Judges’ Commission
The Pennsylvania Council of Chief Juvenile Probation Officers
The Pennsylvania Commission on Crime and Delinquency
The Juvenile Court Section of the Pennsylvania Conference of State Trial Judges
Although prevalence estimates vary, there is consensus that high percentages of justice-involved women and men have experienced serious trauma throughout their lifetime. The reverberating effects of trauma experiences can challenge a person’s capacity for recovery and pose significant barriers to accessing services, often resulting in an increased risk of coming into contact with the criminal justice system.

This highly interactive training is specifically tailored for judges to:

- Increase understanding of trauma
- Create an awareness of the impact of trauma on behavior
- Develop trauma-informed responses

Trauma-informed court responses can help to avoid re-traumatizing individuals, and thereby increase safety for all, decrease recidivism, and promote and support recovery of justice-involved women and men with serious mental illness. Partnerships across systems can also help to link individuals to trauma-informed services and treatment for trauma.

  “Why What We Do Matters”

  A fierce advocate committed to reform, Judge Victoria Pratt spent years gaining a deep understanding of how justice could be delivered to court participants in a manner that increased their trust in the legal system and changed their behavior.

  Called a pioneer in procedural justice, her respectful approach has had a positive effect on court participants’ court experience, how the community viewed the court and how court players viewed their roles.

  She continues to champion criminal justice reform by sharing her skills and approach with others. In her plenary talk titled "Why What We Do Matters," Judge Pratt will share how to heighten and restore respect in our day-to-day operations so that our mission can be better achieved.
