In January 2018, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) released a Data Snapshot, entitled Spotlight on Girls in the Juvenile Justice System, to describe the national trends and characteristics of females in the juvenile justice system. Specifically, this snapshot compared the incidence of arrest, judicial processing, and detainment/placement of females to males. It also examined the offenses which females were most likely to commit.

A similar analysis was conducted using Pennsylvania-specific data for the year 2015. Akin to the national trends, substantial differences existed between males and females across all measures examined. For example, while arrests for both males and females have been declining, the proportion of youth arrests involving females has increased slightly in the same time-period (See Figure 1).

Furthermore, delinquency cases involving females were more likely to be diverted than cases involving males (See Figure 2) and among those cases that were petitioned, females were more likely than males to receive a consent decree or probation disposition. Males, on the other hand, were more likely to be petitioned than females. Similarly, males were more likely to be adjudicated delinquent and to receive a placement disposition compared to females.

Among all females who had a delinquency case in 2015 in Pennsylvania, 34% had committed a person offense, 33% had committed a public order offense, 21% had committed a property offense, and 12% had committed a drug offense. Furthermore, in 2015, females were more likely than males to be detained or placed for person offenses. Males were more likely to be detained or placed for all other groups of offenses (property, drug, and public order). See Figure 3.

ADDRESSING RESPONSIVITY THROUGH EXPANSION OF MAYSIS2 UTILIZATION

On June 20, 2018 in State College, representatives from 16 counties attended a seminar to assist in the implementation of the Massachusetts Youth Screening Instrument: Version 2 (MAYSIS2) into their screening and assessment practices. Participants received information on administration protocols of the MAYSIS2, meanings of the scales and scores, use of the scores to make decisions, importance of response protocols, and use of the web-based version of the MAYSIS2. A team of presenters consisting of Bill Keim, Berks County Assistant Chief Juvenile Probation Office; Tricia Ushler, Chester County Diversion Specialist; and Alan Tezak, JJSES Consultant, led the seminar.

The MAYSIS2 is a self-report questionnaire designed to identify potential instances of mental and emotional disturbance or distress in youth involved in the juvenile justice system. The instrument takes approximately 10 to 15 minutes to administer via the web-based application and the questions are provided at a 5th grade reading level in English or Spanish. The MAYSIS2 does not require clinical expertise to administer or score. Youths’ scores are divided into 7 subscales (Alcohol/Drug Use, Angry-Irritable, Depressed-Anxious, Somatic Complaints, Suicide Ideation, Thought Disturbance, and Traumatic Experiences) and staff are alerted to higher-scoring youths via caution (“clinically-significant score”) and warning (“highest 10% scoring in the subscale”) cut-off scores.

Given its ability to prioritize the acuity of the mental or emotional disturbance or distress, the MAYSIS2 is useful in determining the level of response required for a youth experiencing potential behavioral health issues. The MAYSIS2 has also emerged as an important tool for juvenile probation officers in identifying possible responsivity challenges. Information reported by the youth within the individual scales of the instrument can provide insight into issues being experienced by the youth that may affect his/her responsiveness to interventions. The use of the MAYSIS2 is identified as a JJSES Stage Two activity. Please see the JJSES Monograph: https://pachiefprobationofficers.org/docs/JJSES_Monograph.pdf

Use of the MAYSIS2 at juvenile probation intake in Pennsylvania began as a pilot project under the MacArthur Foundation’s Models for Change Initiative. While there was attrition from the original participants in the pilot project for a variety of reasons, the release of the web-based version of the MAYSIS2 presents an opportunity to expand its use as an effective screening tool for potential behavioral health and responsivity issues of youth. With the most recent addition of counties that participated in the June 20th seminar, 28 Pennsylvania juvenile probation departments are involved in the use of the MAYSIS2.

As the use of the MAYSIS2 is a core Stage Two activity of the JJSES, the JJSES Leadership Team and the Behavioral Health Committee of the PA Council of Chief Juvenile Probation Officers have made increasing its use among the counties a priority. While grant funding is currently not available for the web-based subscriptions, counties may use some of the operations portion of their JCJC Grant-In-Aid funding or use Needs-Based Budget funds. A one-year subscription for the web-based MAYSIS2 provides four user licenses. The National Youth Screening & Assistance Partners (NYSAP) have indicated that they will no longer offer the MAYSISWARE software. The cost of the one-year subscription is $500.00 per year and requires a one-time purchase of the MAYSIS2 User’s Manual & Technical Report which is $125.00. Additional information regarding the MAYSIS2 can be found at: http://www.nysap.us/MAYSIS2.html.

For counties that are interested in implementing the MAYSIS2, please contact Alan Tezak, JJSES Consultant at alantezak@comcast.net, Jay Leamy, Chair of PCCJPO Behavioral Health Committee at jdleamy@chesco.org, or Bob Williams, Stage 3 Co-Chair of the JJSES Leadership Team at rwilliams@countyofberks.com.

PROFESSIONAL READING SKILLS WORKSHOP

SCHEDULED FOR SEPTEMBER 6, 2018

The Professional Reading Skills Workshop is a six-hour time savings program conducted in one day and is designed for professionals and executives from entry level through senior management who must read and assimilate material with high rates of retention and accuracy.

Participants will see an increase in their reading rate and learn how to handle written communications more effectively and efficiently by improving both their study and reading abilities. Note-taking techniques to be used with textbooks, lectures, and research are included and an added benefit to anyone working toward a degree or certification.

This is a hands-on “learn-by-doing” course geared to all phases of reading from everyday business reading to in-depth study to critical and complex reading. Old “Dick & Jane” habits will be replaced by widening the span of perception, developing flexibility of rate and the use of selective reinforcement when higher levels of retention are required. There will also be a marked improvement in concentration and accuracy.
WHAT IS A DATA DASHBOARD?

There are many forms of ‘Dashboards’ in our daily lives, from the ones just beyond our vehicle’s steering wheel, to apps we find on our mobile phones. In general, these Dashboards are an information management tool which organizes large amounts of real-time data into a visual display to easily monitor key performance indicators (KPI’s). The data collection side of information technology is rapidly expanding, and a large amount of Dashboard applications are being developed to support that data. This is also the case with data managed by the Juvenile Court Judges’ Commission (JCJC) which is entered into the Pennsylvania Juvenile Case Management System (PaJCMS).

The application of choice for the JCJC Data Dashboard is called “iDashboards.” This is a web-based application installed alongside the PaJCMS database and provides various dashboards for users within juvenile probation departments throughout the state. Some of the KPI’s currently established provide high level juvenile information, such as total numbers of active juveniles on supervision, or totals of active detentions or placements. The graphical design of a dashboard allows for easy ‘drill-down’ to additional data groupings with the click of a mouse to provide additional details, such as demographic or even case level information.

While the Dashboard will never replace the details and format of a typical data report, it is one tool in the information technology world that can help manage the huge volumes of data in an organized manner. Those in the juvenile probation departments within our state that use the PaJCMS system to manage their cases may find more information on how these Dashboards can help them by contacting their PaJCMS Help Desk Representative.
